

Official Statement - CTFY Trading Bot

20.07.2020

Given the occasion and various inquiries, we take the Opportunity to publish the following statement on the current facts:

The company Crypto Trust Holding has taken over the product and the capital of the CTFY Trading Bot as a whole. This was published in the news channel. The entire capital is deposited on crypto trading exchanges.

In order to trade for the community, a legally compliant structure is required, which we are currently setting up in the United Arab Emirates. It is not just a matter of founding another company in this case, furthermore, applying for a trading license and creating the necessary framework, which has already been started. In order to make this application, the company had to present the financial values, describe strategies and meet special requirements.

The company can only represent the capital if the capital is not exposed to any trading risk in the period until the trading license is issued. Some of the necessary actions in this process can be dealt online, but for some it is essential to appear in person. As it was impossible or difficult to travel due to the crisis in the past weeks and months and to make appointments with authorities in UAE, the process was delayed. (Further steps in this process will also be published on the news channel).

We have received specific questions that we would like to answer here:

1) There has been no trading activity since the acquisition, as the company or trader cannot perform this activity at the moment. Trading will start again in the moment an official trading license is obtained. All users are promptly and properly informed about all changes and news via the official channel.

2) There is currently no return due to point 1.

3) The last trading report was posted on the official channel. There are no current trading reports due to Point 1.

4) Images of the stock exchange accounts have already been published in the public news channel to demonstrate that the capital of the user is available. There is no other way to represent this here. We would be happy to send you further documentation, which has been confirmed by a third party, afterwards. (after the license has been granted).

5) Every user who has joined this platform is clearly informed that crypto trading is a high-risk Investment Opportunity. Each account and each deposit into the product has a term of 78 weeks. At the moment there is not a single user who has not reached at least 100% of the paid-in values (ROI) within 78 weeks.

Users who have not yet reached ROI have not yet participated in at least 78 trading weeks. Due to the period in which trading was suspended, the company will of course extend all accounts by the amount of time that trading had to be paused. (All users will also be informed about this via the official news channel.)

Clarification: Sales partners, users, employees, support, agents or tipsters have no access to capital.

Personal calls or direct contact to Crypto Trust Holding LLC or the people involved do not result in more information flow than any individual user can see from the news channel. There is no selection of the information flow here, every user gets all relevant information at the same time.

For this we would like to inform here where the official information can be seen:
